Project Summary

- Wanted to make big stacks
- We determined who would be the team lead on each of the assigned milestones which kept us organized the whole semester.
- We also planned out when we would meet after everyone submitted their schedules
- We knew that simplistic, repetition, smoothe, and taskbar oriented would bring us the most success.
- Things flowed smoothly since a lot of the project we used experience from our personal ones.
- We thought we were ahead til we got to the implementing/functionality of the website which proved to be difficult
- We succeeded in the simplistic, repetition feel but lacked in the attractiveness and smooth functionality.

Work Performed

- Created GitHub
- Assigned Team Leads
- Developed an extensive milestone and project plan on an excel sheet
- Sat down and genuinely figured the theme and layout of the website
- Met at least once a week if not twice
- Created multiple in depth presentations and executed them to the class to show our progress
- Kept updating our excel sheet with our million dollar idea.
- We would always turn our milestones in on time with good detail
- Finished coding for the website
- Tried to make the website as functional as possible.

What Went Well

- Simplistic and Taskbar Oriented
- Coding had less hiccups because of working on our individual websites first
- Visual Studios Live Share
- We are billionaires now

What didn't go Well

- Website is not the most visually appealing
- Functionality proved to be harder than anticipated
 - Hard to meet in person with Covid-19
 - Justin and Bret Got Strep
 - We had to file for bankruptcy

Better solutions

- Practices and learn what makes a website visually appealing
- Figure out the functionality portion more early on
- Take advantage of apps like zoom and skype

Conclusion

- Overall successful project for the most part
- Could have improved but this is all still new to us
- Very fun project
- Nice to have individual assignments paired up so we know the direction to go
- Demo Time
